Brian Calvin X Anton Kern Gallery

September 19, 2014

This week we decided to ditch Brooklyn, and head over to the city to shop, eat and of course gallery hop! Located near Chelsea Piers, the Brian Calvin exhibition at the Anton Kern Gallery immediately caught our eye. Known as the painter of "pausing-as-anactivity," Calvin's paintings of closely cropped faces and posing figures display a great attention to detail. While Calvin's paintings don't run cheap, we are lusting over his tee shirt collaboration with Raf Simons, which fortunately runs at a more affordable price point.

Check out the photos we snapped below, and head over to the exhibit yourself before it closes on October 4th!
